

Chapter 2

The boy was in the river.
"Help, help! I can't swim!" he shouted.

We ran to the river.
"Don't worry. I'm going to help you!" I said.
Then I got my rope.
I threw the rope and I pulled the boy out of the river.

"Thank you, Ranger Day. You saved my son!" said the father.
"You're welcome. Now take your son to the doctor.
He's going to be fine," I said.

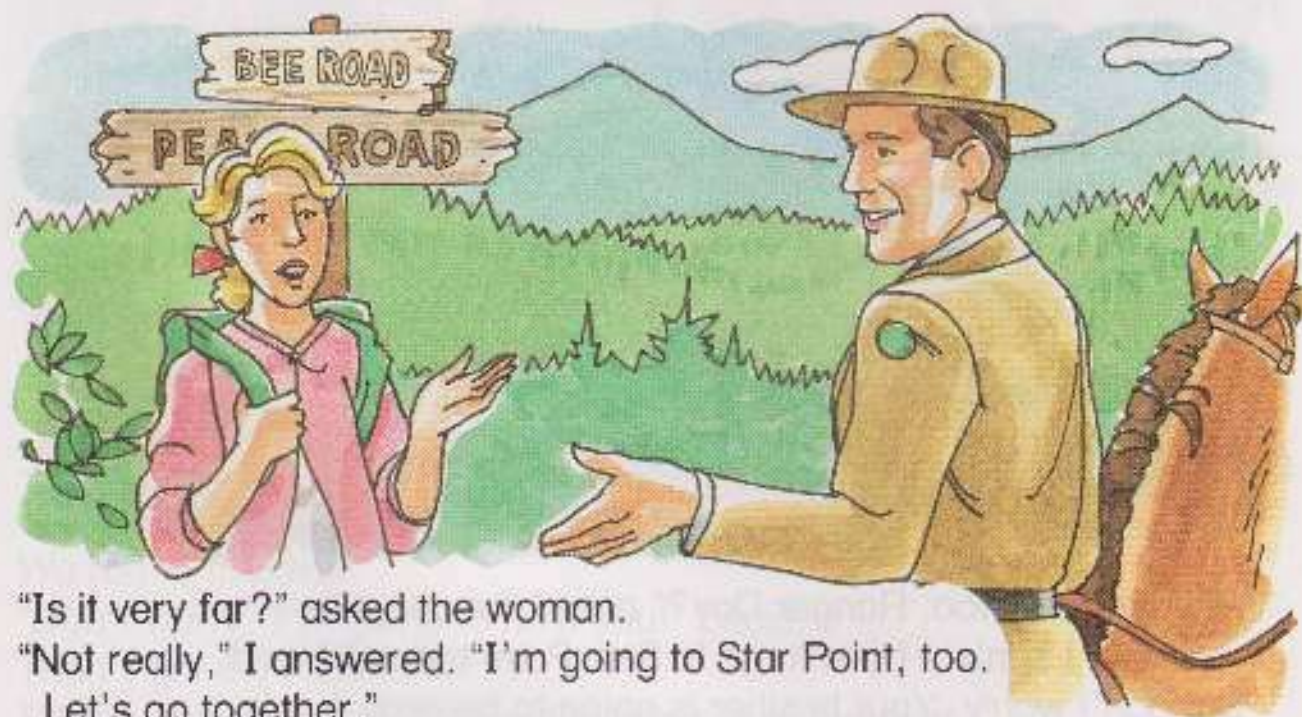

"Will you come, too, Ranger Day?" asked the daughter.
"I'm sorry, I can't. I have to go to Star Point today," I said.
"But don't worry. Your brother is going to be okay."

I came to Bee Road. I met a young woman.
"Hello, I'm Ranger Day. Can I help you?" I asked.
"Hello, Ranger Day. I'm lost. I'm looking for Star Point," said the woman.

"Is it very far?" asked the woman.
"Not really," I answered. "I'm going to Star Point, too.
Let's go together."

"I'm Miss Snow. I'm a teacher at Sunnyville College. I'm collecting small blue flowers for my art class," said the woman.

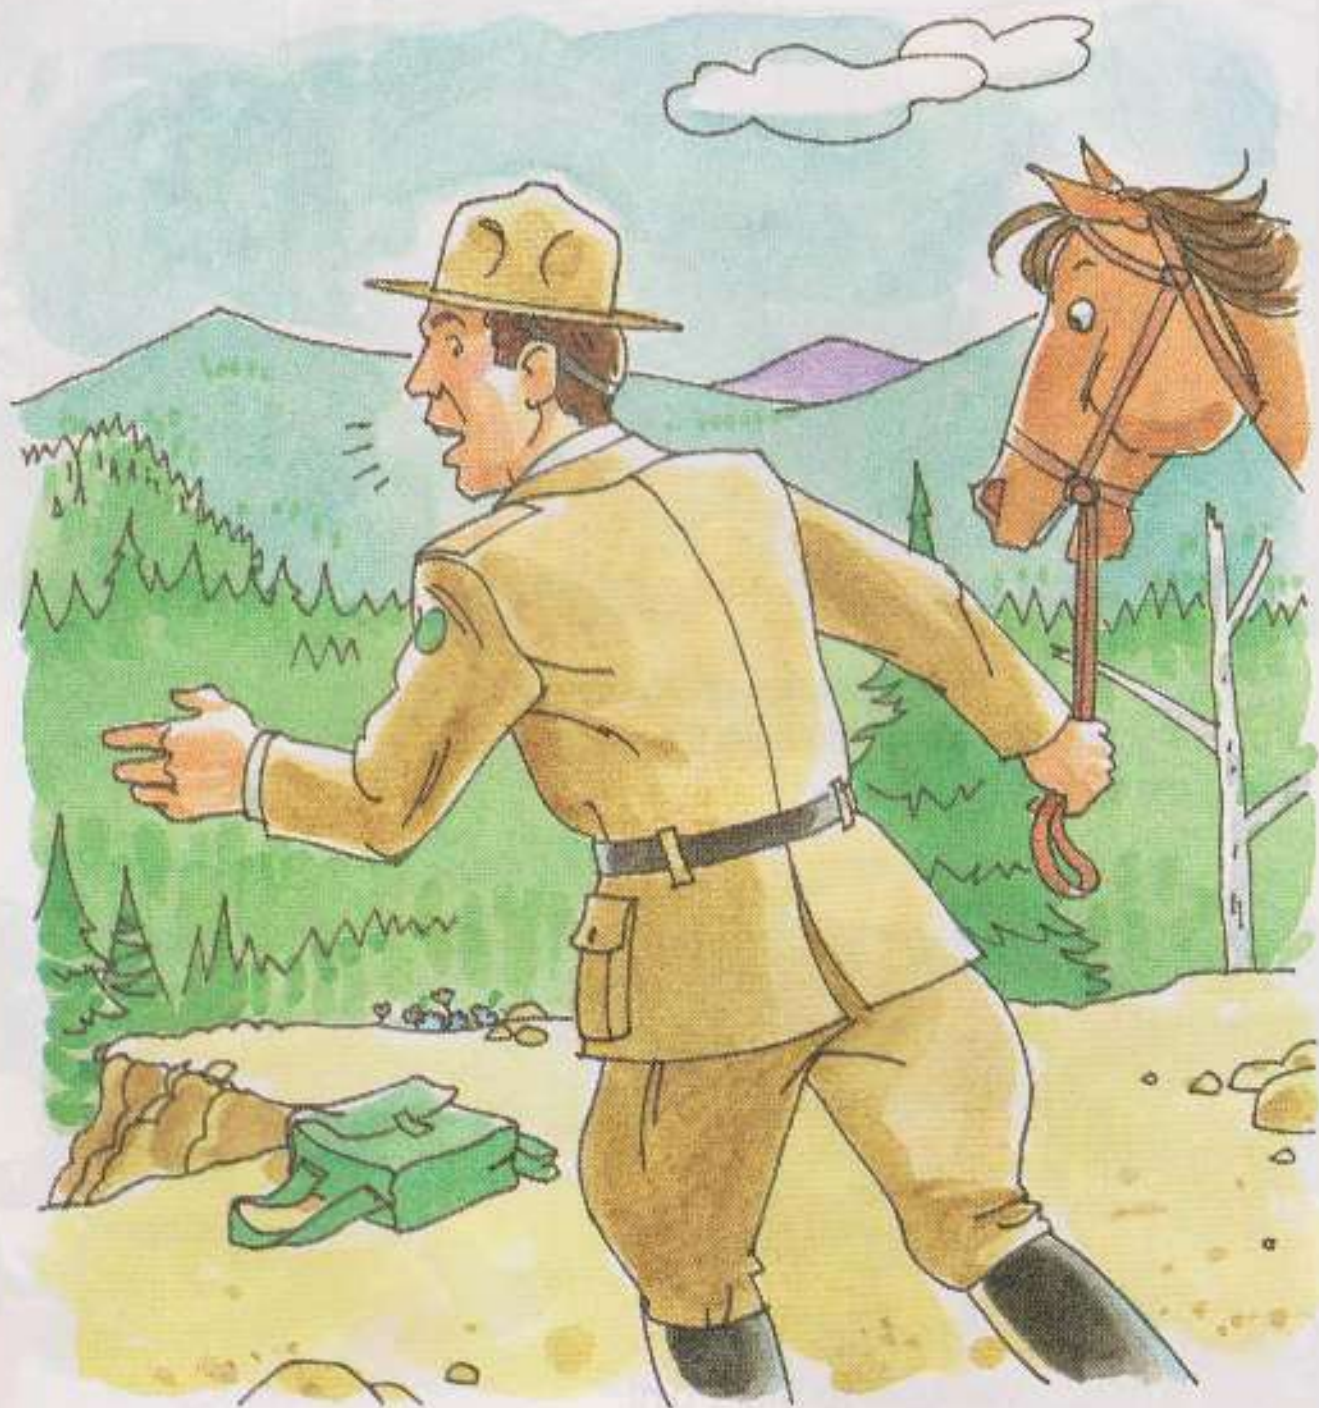

We went to Star Point.
"Thank you very much, Ranger Day!" said Miss Snow.
"You're welcome," I said. "Be careful."
She smiled and waved good-bye.
