

Chapter 2

"Did people drive cars in 1900?" asked Mike.

"Yes, people sometimes drove cars," Professor Walker answered.

"Here's a book about the history of cars. I wrote it."

"Wow," said Ms. Apple.

Suddenly, a loud horn honked. Everyone jumped.

Professor Walker ran to the car.

"Look at this!" he shouted. "There are footprints in the car!"

"What kind of footprints?" asked Ms. Apple.

"Dog footprints!" answered Professor Walker.

Annie walked in. "What was that noise?" she asked.

"A dog honked the car horn!" said Joe.

"You're joking!" said Annie.

"No, I'm not!" said Joe.

"Be quiet, children!" said Ms. Apple. "You need to do your worksheets now. Please go upstairs."

Professor Walker called the snack bar. He told Ms. Sweet about the dog.
 "You're joking!" said Ms. Sweet.
 "No, I'm not!" said Professor Walker.
 "Oh!" said Ms. Sweet. "I'll look out for any dogs."

"What kinds of cookies do you have?" asked Emily.
 "We have chocolate and peanut butter," answered Ms. Sweet.

Mike, Joe, and Annie rode the escalator to the second floor by themselves.

Annie's mom wasn't at the Costumes Exhibit.

"Look at that man!" said Mike. "He's wearing a wig!"
 "Look at that man!" said Joe. "He's putting on makeup!"
 "Look at that man," said Annie. "He's reading a newspaper."

Ted, Bill, and Jan were in the Nature Exhibit.
 Ted said, "Here's the first question: What are the animals doing?"
 "The raccoon is doing laundry!" said Bill. Everyone laughed at the joke.

"The dog is taking a nap!" said Jan.
 "What dog?" asked Ted.

"Digger!" said Ted. "Did you come here by yourself?"
 Dogs aren't allowed in the museum!"
 Digger licked Ted.

Professor Walker walked by.
 "There's the dog!" he shouted. "Is he yours?"
 "No, he's Ms. Day's dog," answered Ted. "We found him here."

"Hello, Ms. Day? Your dog is in the museum!"

"What? Can you bring him to the Lecture Room, please?"
