

Trevor: Please turn the volume down on the TV. It is too loud!

Stan: Okay.

Trevor: It is still too loud! Turn it down! I can't concentrate on my math assignment.

Stan: Okay, okay!

Trevor: Would you please turn the TV off?

Stan: I was here first! Would you please go upstairs and do your homework?

Trevor: The air conditioner upstairs is broken. It is too hot upstairs. If you turn off the TV, I'll give you my comic book.

Stan: It's a deal!

- ❖ Where do you do your homework?
- ❖ How much time do you spend on your homework every day?
- ❖ When is it difficult to concentrate on your homework?
- ❖ What else can you turn up, turn down, or turn off?

Ask a question: Would you please _____?

Write a sentence with the word concentrate:

We use the Past Tense to talk about things that happened before now.

To talk about before, you have to change the verb. Some verbs change, and some verbs just add -ed. (Look at pages 79-80 for a list of verbs and their past tense forms.)

Change the underlined words to make the following sentences Past Tense.

Ex: I go to school every day.

→ I went to school yesterday.

1. I eat breakfast at 7:30 every morning.

2. The veterinarian says that my iguana might have cancer.

3. Wayne goes to school at 9:00 every day.

4. We compromise and go to Singapore.

5. Dan turn down the volume on the TV, because it is too loud.

6. Chris write a poem for his school assignment this week.

7. Fran get a part-time job and start to earn some pocket money.

8. Lisa concentrates on her studies, so she gets good grades.
