1 Grammar Notes

A. Introduction

An article is a little word that comes before a noun (a person, place, or thing). English articles include a, an, and the.

A / An / Ø

Use a and an before a singular (one) noun. This noun must be general. General means you can't see the noun and/or you don't know which noun it is.

- I want to buy a dress.
You can't see the dress, and you don't know which dress it is.
- I bought a new bicycle.
You can't see the bicycle right now.

Use a before a consonant, and use an before a vowel (a, e, i, o, u).

- I have a cat.
- I have an iPhone.

Use Ø (no article) before a plural (two or more) noun that is general.

- I want to buy shoes. (no article)
- I bought pens and books. (no article)

The

Use the before singular and plural nouns. These nouns must be specific. Specific means you can see the noun and/or you know which noun it is.

- Look at the chair.
I bought the chair yesterday.
You can see the chair.
- Here are the games that I told you about.
You know which games they are.

B. Notes

Note #1

Use the when there is only one of the noun.

- the sun, the moon (in the sky)
- the mall, the library (in a city)

Note #3

Use the with a general noun when the noun is followed by that and information that describes it (called an adjective clause).

- The shoes that I wear every day are red.
- The TV that I want to buy is really big.

Note #2

Use the for the second mention of a noun.

- I bought a laptop yesterday.
The laptop was expensive.
- I want a new puppy.
The puppy must be toilet trained.

Note #4

In most cases, use a/an/Ø with a specific noun when the sentence starts with “There is/are” and includes a preposition. Use the after the preposition.

- There is a green dress on the hanger.
- There are green dresses on the hangers.
(no article before “dresses”)
