

World's Oldest Dog Dies at 147

The world's oldest dog has died aged 147. That's in "dog years", not human years. She was 21 years old in our years. Her name was Chanel and she was a dachshund (also known as a sausage dog). Chanel's owners, Denice and Karl Shaughnessy, were very sad at the death of their pet. They said she was a part of their life for so many years.

VOCABULARY: Match the correct answers.

- | | |
|-----------------------|-----------------------|
| 1. die | a. pass on |
| 2. human | b. sausage dog |
| 3. dachshund | c. lonely |
| 4. sad | d. significant others |
| 5. part of their life | e. person |

READING COMPREHENSION: Choose the correct answer.

1. How old was the dog in human years?
2. How old was the dog in dog years?
3. What is the name of the dog?
4. What is the breed of the dog?
5. What do we also call the dachshund dog?
6. Who owns Chanel?
7. How do Denice and Karl Shaughnessy feel about Chanel's death?